

PUQIO

VALLE COLCA

PRELIMINARY FACTSHEET

COLCA VALLEY

Jagged canyon ledges, soaring condors, surreal grasslands, and a river that is said to flow directly into the Milky Way—this is Valle Colca. Only a three hour drive from Arequipa, this valley feels like one of the most remote places on earth. Pre-Inca terraces still in use today give hints of the stories left untold, impossible to discover in an afternoon visit. Valle Colca invites you to slow down to experience life at the pace of nature, if only for a few days.

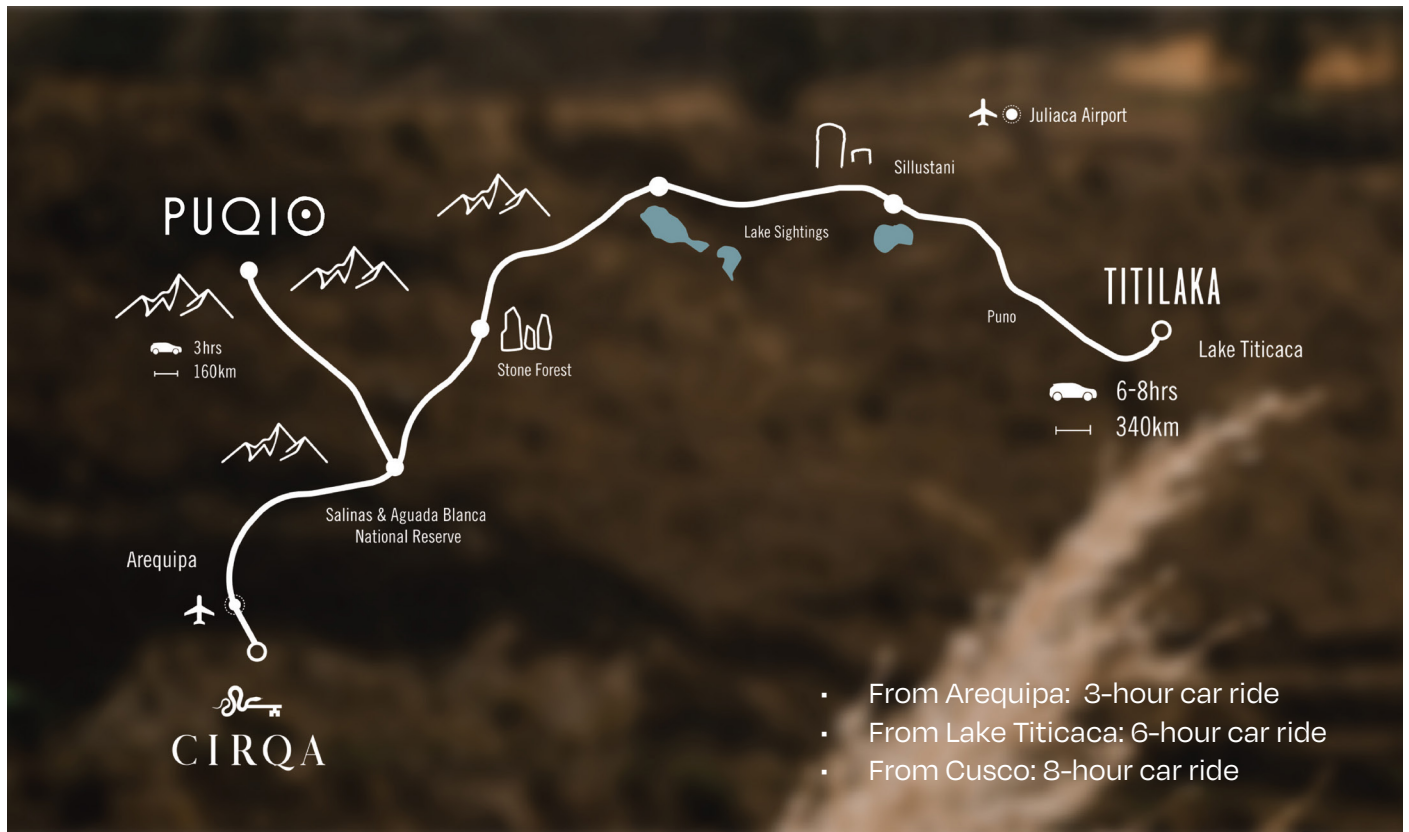

PUQIO

A thoughtful tented camp that reflects the simplicity and rawness of the surrounding landscape. Time at Puqio is a reminder of what is essential. An integral Andean-style exploration that invites guests to experience the Valley through food, excursions, and discovery drives.

Deep in the heart of the Colca Valley, Puqio turns back to nature. Fuming volcanoes, sweeping grasslands, and untrodden pathways await daily exploration. Clay oven and open flame meals that feature raw Andean flavours and traditions. At night, rustic elegance rejuvenates body and spirit of the experienced traveller. This is the real Valle Colca.

LOCATION

The Colca Valley is located in the Southern Peruvian Andes, a few hours north of Arequipa. Puqio is located about 1.5 km from Yanque (15-minute car ride) and 9.5km from Chivay (25-minute car ride), a couple of Colca's better known towns.

WEATHER AND ALTITUDE

The Colca Valley is known for its impressive depth, reaching a maximum depth of around 3,400 meters (11,150 feet) from the rim of the Colca Canyon to the bottom of the valley. The altitude in the valley varies, but most of the major towns and tourist destinations in the area, such as Chivay and Yanque, are located at elevations between 3,600 meters (11,800 feet) and 3,900 meters (12,800 feet) above sea level.

Weather and altitude in the Colca Valley can vary depending on the specific location within the valley and the time of year. Colca has two main seasons: the dry season and the rainy season. The dry season typically runs from May to October, while the rainy season spans from November to April. However, due to the valley's altitude, weather patterns can be unpredictable, and it's not uncommon to experience variations throughout the year. Temperatures range from 10 C° to 24 C° during the day and 10 C° to 0 C° at night.

Overall, it's a good idea to be prepared for varying weather conditions when visiting the Colca Valley. Layered clothing, including warm garments for cooler temperatures and rain gear for the rainy season, is recommended.
